The 93, and 94 K1100LT's are thought by some to be a better bike than the later years. All the K1100's require attention to the steering head bearing. I'd test ride an R11XXRT if I were you, much better wind protection and easier to service. It's not a big framed bike like the K100 or K1100. You might want to try a K75RT on for size.

I own a 93 K1100LT and am having a problem with the ABS fault light. The ABS braking system is working properly, but on start up and drive off the brake warning light in the instument console goes through the function check for brake tail light, then goes to blinking to indicate a ABS fault. I have had two BMW mechanics work on the problem, one a dealer replaced the lamp monitoring relay and ...
