Diagnosing lesions of the oral mucosa is necessary for the proper management of patients. Clinical differential diagnosis is the cognitive process of applying logic and knowledge, in a series of step-by-step decisions, to create a list of possible diagnoses. Differential diagnosis should be approached on the basis of exclusion.

Gender. Females have UTIs more frequently, compared with males, due to a shorter urethra that is in closer proximity to the perineum. More than 50% of women will have a UTI during their lifetime, with 20% of these women experiencing 2 or more infections. In men, UTIs are rare (less than 0.1%), except in cases of anatomic abnormalities.
